GANESH CHATURTHI CELEBRATIONS

Ganesh Chaturthi was celebrated in our school this year with great joy and excitement. Ganesh puja followed by a homa was held in the auditorium. We not only thanked the lord for all his blessings but also prayed for the betterment of our school. We were provided with delicious prasadam which the students relished thoroughly. We hope that Lord Ganesha will listen to our prayers and fill our lives with happiness.

TEACHERS' DAY CELEBRATION AT NEW HORIZON PUBLIC SCHOOL

Teachers' Day is celebrated to commemorate the birth anniversary of Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, who was born on 5th September, 1888. The graduating class of New Horizon Public School made the occasion special by preparing for it two months prior to the given date.

On 5th September, the teachers of NHPS were treated to a series of events they will never forget. Teachers' Day, 2017, started off with a melodious rendition of "Ae Kuda" by the students of Std X. Dances, bands, skits and interactive events that followed were thoroughly enjoyed by the teachers. The treasure hunt conducted for the teachers, had them desperately searching for clues. Basketball and Volleyball matches between students and teachers were conducted. Both the teachers and students had immense fun. The day concluded with a mini carnival with delicious food and fun games.

The high school students put in their heart and soul into making this day worth remembering for a long time to come.

RALLY FOR OUR RIVERS

On 1st September, 2017, New Horizon Public School was smattered with the various shades of Blue. This was done in observance to bring about mass awareness of the crisis our river bodies face. The teachers of the school spoke to their individual classes about the importance of preserving nature and how the young future of our country can bring about a change, one person at a time. We at New Horizon Public School believe that if there is anyone who can transform the thinking of our society, it is the children. The students of New Horizon Public School had earlier participated in Save Kaggadaspura Lake Project and now they wish for everyone to realize the importance of water in our lives.

AMAZING ME - 26TH JULY, 2017

It was a treat to watch the little ones in school come forward and state a few things about themselves. After introducing themselves, our Nursery students spoke with confidence and excitement. It was indeed a competition they thoroughly enjoyed.

Congratulations to our little painter, Yuvanth B from UKG D. His artwork was selected and recognized by 'Heritage Foundation of Art and Culture' on the launch of 'India wins Freedom'. The painting exhibition for children from various schools was held at Venkatappa Art Gallery, Kasturba Road, Bengaluru from 14th to 17th August. Yuvanth was the youngest participant.

HOW I CELEBRATE GANESH CHATURTHI!

Ganesha is my favourite God as He is the God of good beginnings, prosperity and the remover of all obstacles. I wake up early in the morning to help my mother make Ganesha Rangoli in front of our house. We also decorate the entrance of our house with fresh mango leaves and flowers.

My father helps us get ready for the puja. We normally dress up in our traditional attire. My mother makes yummy steamed modak and chicpea sundal. After the puja, we visit a Ganesha temple in our neighbourhood which is beautifully decorated. I love seeing big idols of Ganesha as it brings a festive mood in the air.

We also celebrate Ganesh Chaturthi in our apartment with our friends and family. It is the most awaited festival every year.

JANMASHTAMI – UKG – 1ST SEPTEMBER

The UKG students presented a musical dance show with glimpses into the life of Lord Krishna. Perfect performances, graceful dances, synchronized movements and the attractive costumes were the highlights of the show. Scenes like the birth of Krishna, natkhat Krishna, maakhanchor and dahihandi were beautifully portrayed.

Continuous cheering by the parents boosted the morale of the children who were all determined to put their best foot forward and present a spectacular show.

TREK TO EBC

Ever since I was a young boy, I have loved trekking. My first trek was to Edakkal Caves in Kerala, when I was four years old and I have been going on treks since then. My latest and greatest trek so far has been my trek to EBC. EBC is the abbreviation of Everest Base Camp and as the name suggests, it lies at the base of Mount Everest. The trail to the Everest Base Camp lies in Sagarmatha National Park, Nepal. It lies at a height of 17,592 feet.

My mother and I left for EBC on April 8. We left Bangalore and took a connecting flight to Nepal from Delhi. We reached Kathmandu, the capital of Nepal. After reaching our hotel, we met three other people who were part of our expedition and our group leaders. The next day, after reaching the starting point, a place called Lukla by taking a small plane, we started the trek. We reached a place called Phakding by evening. The trek from Lukla to Phakding covered a distance of 9 km. The next day, we left for a place called Namche Bazaar, which was 11 km from Phakding. Namche Bazaar is essentially a market place, and it is the last place to buy required equipments, as no other stores are available after Namche. It is also the last place where one can stay in a decent lodge. All the places after this are shacks lacking even a washbasin. Anyway, we stayed in Namche for a day to get 'acclimatized'. This means getting used to the altitude and climate to minimize the risk of getting Altitude Mountain Sickness.

The next day onwards, we covered a distance of 12 km daily. We trekked from Namche Bazaar to Tengboche which is famous for its beautiful monastery. The next day, we trekked from Tengboche to Dingboche, where I saw snow for the first time in my life. We stayed there for a day to get acclimatized. We left for Lobuche after that.

On the way, we got caught in a heavy snowstorm, which was followed by a dust storm. We had to first reach a place called Gorak Shep, eat our lunch and then reach EBC.

However at the 17,460 foot mark, I started experiencing breathing problems. It felt like someone was grabbing my neck as I walked. This was a result of low oxygen level, coupled with fatigue and tiredness. I still pushed on however, determined to reach the top. My efforts paid off, and I reached EBC at three in the afternoon. It was truly the best and happiest moment of my life. We went back to Gorak Shep after an hour and a half, and spent the night there.

The return back to Lukla was completed in three days. We covered an average of 20 km per day. We took a flight back to Kathmandu, where we did a little shopping. As I was the youngest and completed the trek despite my breathing problems, my guide got me a native dagger called a khukri.

All in all, I feel that this trek was the best and the toughest trek in my life. I pray that I get a chance to go back, but with one small change. I will climb Mount Everest.

SPIN A YARN

DOOMED

Life was boring. Unemployment was definitely taking a toll on Gordon's life. It had been two whole years since he had left his workplace. He needed some time off to figure some things out. Now, he was desperate for any job.

Gordon had sent his resume to various offices and firms. There had been no reply, until one day, he received a call. He had been short-listed by a company and he needed to appear for an interview. On receiving the news, Gordon was on cloud nine. He had long awaited this. The next week, he left for the company's head quarters, feeling very confident indeed. Being a large elephant, it did take him a lot of time to get there. He asked the receptionist whether he could enter the office. He told her his name and the time of his appointment. The receptionist read through her diary and then told Gordon to proceed to the first room on the left. Something about the office gave Gordon a sense of danger. He ignored it and continued walking. He saw a poster that read, "Elephant needed, no experience necessary".

Gordon entered and saw a man wearing a hat with a leopard print, casually sitting on his chair. The man Leo, greeted Gordon and almost immediately started talking about Gordon's job profile. He was supposed to provide Leo with information. The pay was very good as well. The interview seemed to be going on well until Gordon's sixth sense kicked in. He noticed the paper holder. It was made out of an elephant's tusk. Different parts of the elephant were displayed on the walls of the entire room as trophies. Gordon began to feel claustrophobic.

He began feeling that something was wrong. He asked Leo what information he was supposed to provide. Leo's blunt reply was, "The location of other elephants, of course". He could not betray his community! The elephant in the other room suddenly took an interest in the ongoing topic. Gordon declined the job offer and said that he could not spy on members of his community. Leo pointed a gun at Gordon's face and told him that he had no choice. The elephant in the other room wanted to help, but he was terrified. With a swift swing of his trunk, Gordon swatted Leo's gun and ran towards the door. His heart raced and he began to sweat. Leo immediately recovered and started to run towards Gordon. Out of nowhere, a huge elephant smashed into Leo. He lay unconscious on the floor. It was the elephant in the other room.

Nothing made sense to Gordon. The other elephant, Nelson, explained that Leo lured elephants through his attractive job offers and took over their lives when they least expected it. The company was a slaughterhouse of elephants. Nelson was new there and when he realized what Leo was going to do to Gordon, he knew that he had to save him. Leo did not let his other employees, who were all elephants, resign. He threatened their families until they had no choice but to work for him. Humans are not trustworthy, Gordon should have known. The two elephants escaped. The very next day, there was an article, that read – "Bengal tigers wanted, No experience necessary". The article was published by the same company. The animals had no power against humans. All they could do, was watch their friends get hung on walls and get sold in other countries. After all, they were humans. It would take a lot more than the extinction of a few hundred species of wild life, before they finally realized that something was wrong! The fate of the animals lay in human's hands. Of course, they were doomed.
