SUMMER CAMP

A summer camp is an opportunity to explore new things or dive deep into areas you love. The summer camp at New Horizon Public School started on April 1 and culminated on April 29, 2023. Our Summer Camp included various activities like Robotics, Creative and Fun Sports, Public Speaking, Story-Telling, Skating, Abacus and Vedic Math, Dance, etc. Fun-filled activities for the children during the holidays helped them learn new skills in dance, art and craft, theatre, yoga, and music, explore science and excel in sports. The camp aimed at keeping the students engaged and provided them the platform to explore and express their creativity in different forms according to their interests. They not only made memories while having fun, but also were able to overcome their fears while trying new things. The students pushed their boundaries, realised self-sufficiency, and were able to make new friends amidst a lot of fun. They practised team spirit and their confidence was enhanced in their abilities.

THE PLANETS AND CONSTELLATIONS AND STARS

The planets and constellations and stars
Grouped together in the vastness of space,
Congregated and stood like czars
To form the night sky's fiery handsome face.

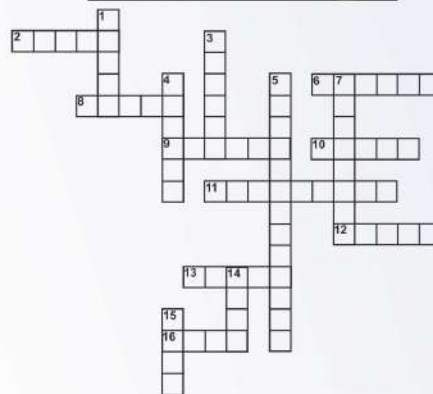

Their glow alone would calm and soothe the souls
Of travellers and hermits; but then
Our blind need for novelty took a toll
And firecrackers were fashioned by men.

The stars and constellations sat quiet –
They did not bother with humankind's deed.
The contest for light wasn't over yet
To our misguided action, they paid no heed.

For they know, when the last cracker has burst
We will look to them with a newfound thirst.

Compassion and Charity go hand in hand!

"The purpose of human life is to serve, and to show compassion and the will to help others."
– Albert Schweitzer

A lot has been said about compassion and charity. From Buddha to Gandhi, many great men and women alike have been strong advocates for the same.

Compassion is a feeling of deep sympathy for another living being stricken by misfortune, accompanied by a strong desire to alleviate the suffering. Charity is the voluntary giving of help, typically in the form of money or service, to those in need.

Compassion is an emotion, and charity is an act done because of compassion. When people practise charity, they are in control of the situation and can pick and choose when, who and how much to help. When people are compassionate, they do not consciously decide to act. They are involved at the emotional and unconditional levels. There is no limit to the help rendered, and the cost does not matter.

Research by a group of scientists at the Max Planck Institute, Germany, found that infants and chimpanzees spontaneously engage in helpful and supportive behaviour and will even overcome obstacles to do so. They do so from an intrinsic motivation without the expectation of a reward. A recent study they ran, indicated that the diameters of infants' pupils, which are a measure of attention, decrease, both when they help and when they see someone else helping. This suggests that the alleviation of others' suffering feels rewarding — whether or not they engage in the helping behaviour themselves.

Compassion is a natural tendency and is essential for human endurance. Being compassionate and charitable brings joy to the body, heart and soul.

Have you ever been moved to tears, seeing some one's loving and compassionate gesture? If you recall a time when you were feeling blue and suddenly a close friend or relative called you for an urgent help. As your attention shifted to their issue, your mood lifted and you may have felt energised. Before you knew it, you may even have gained some perspective on your own situation as well.

A life of meaning and purpose is one focused less on satisfying oneself and more on others. It is a life with a greater meaning, rich in compassion, altruism, charity and humility. The time has come when we need to step back and reflect on what is important for humanity.

In the Bhagavad Gita, Lord Krishna says,

"He who has let go of hatred, who treats all beings with kindness and compassion, who is always serene, free of the 'I' and 'mine', firm and patient, his whole mind focused on me --- that is the man I love best."

With the ever-increasing need for compassion and charity in today's world, it is time to start a ripple effect which will hopefully impact the community at large.

A compelling example is the Akshaya Patra Foundation, that feeds lakhs of school children across India every day, leading to an upward surge in school enrolment and attendance.

THE QUEENS OF WANIA - STORY OF THE TWO PRINCESSES

A small note about the author of this story - I am Aditri Chakraborty, a student at NHPS since LKG. I am eight years old and look forward to being a 4th grader. I like to read books and practice music in my free time. I wrote this story during my summer vacation. It is about two brave girls fighting for their kingdom. I hope you will enjoy reading this story.

Chapter I The Beginning

Once upon a time, Wania, a country, consisted of the three cities of Firania, Icania and Treasurania. According to the ancient legend of Wania, Treasurania had two magical gems that could choose the true rulers of Wania. No one lived in Treasurania because of the harsh weather. Many people attempted to reach the city but were unsuccessful.

One day two meteors fell on earth. One went into the queen of Wania, in Firania, while the other went into a poor woman living in Icania. The next day, the queen gave birth to a princess, Rosaline, while the poor woman gave birth to a girl, Analine. Unable to bear the pain, the queen died. Rosaline and Analine possessed good values. Rosaline helped her father in planning strategically and helped improve Wania. Analine helped her mother with household chores. She also helped her father in cutting wood. One day, Analine told her parents she wanted to join the army. Her mother went to the attic and came back with a sword. She said, "Take this sword Analine. It has the power to destroy all evil, and will protect you". Analine took the sword and left for the king's palace.

When Analine reached the palace, she told the guards that she wanted to join the king's army. When the king was informed about her ambition, he thought, "How can I make her a part of my army without training? I must test her." Then the king said, "I test every soldier before training them. Your challenge will be to break this rock into pieces. Only then will you be able to join the army. This rock can be broken only by a person possessing all the good values." Analine thought, "Where will I find this kind of person? The king told me to try. Let me try even though I won't be able to break it." The king gave Analine a sword. When Analine touched the sword, on the rock, it broke into pieces. Analine was surprised! She never thought that she was the person who had all the good values. The king allowed her to join the army. He also allowed her to spend time with his daughter.

Chapter II The Adventure

Rosaline and Analine became good friends, sharing all their joys and sorrows. Analine and Rosaline also practised sword fighting. Analine did not forget about her mother. She would send a letter to her every day. One day, Analine asked Rosaline about her mother since she was eager to know about the queen. Rosaline told her that she would ask her father about the queen.

That night, the king told his daughter everything. He also told her that the meteor did not kill the queen. He had seen shadows in the queen's bedroom. The next day, Rosaline told Analine whatever she learnt from the king.

When Analine's sister, Peneline, was killed, Rosaline and Analine were determined to know the truth. They asked the king if they could go exploring for the next two months. With the king's permission, Rosaline and Analine left for Treasurania. They reached Treasurania by night and entered the spooky forest, where they found a castle. They knocked on the door, and it opened by itself. They walked into the living room. In the center of the room on a table, was a letter. The letter read...

Only the true rulers of Wania can open the castle. You have entered the castle, and that means you both are the true rulers of Wania. - Treasurania.

Chapter III The Battle

Rosaline and Analine looked at each other in astonishment. They never thought that they were the true queens of Wania. Suddenly, a good unicorn, named Arian appeared. He said, "You both are the true queens of Wania." All of a sudden, there was a loud crash behind them. When they turned around, they saw another unicorn, named Evelian, who was evil. He had a very long tongue and tied Rosaline and Analine. They tried to free themselves but could not. Evelian was about to suck their powers, but Analine took out her sword, and cut his tongue. Analine and Rosaline were free and a fierce fight took place between the two parties. Rosaline, Analine and Arian were able to defeat Evelian. They found a hole and slid down through it. Suddenly a dragon, Nagaha, appeared. He was a good dragon but Evelian had cast a spell upon Nagaha, turning it into a bad dragon. Nagaha immediately started attacking them. Rosaline understood that the dragon's black stone made him evil. If anyone broke the stone, Nagaha would turn into a good dragon. Rosaline took Analine's sword and broke the stone. Nagaha turned into a good dragon. Later Nagaha, Arian, Rosaline, and Analine found a mud pit. After digging it, they found two gems. Rosaline, who was from Firania, got the ice gem, while Analine, who was from Icania, got the fire gem.

Nagaha, Arian, Rosaline, and Analine returned to Firania, where they were coronated. All of their Analine's parents became courtiers. Treasurania became the best city of Wania and its capital. This is the story of The Queens of Wania.
